Round 1: Fictionary

Stage 1
Teams will randomly be paired, and then asked to verse other paired teams in a modified game of pictionary, with the losing pairs getting eliminated. Pairs will be determined via chit drawing and matches will be decided by wheel spin.
If there is an odd number of teams, then the unpaired team will automatically move on to the next stage

Stage 2
The teams will play a game of rapid fire pictionary with each team having 60 seconds to draw the assigned character.
Any form of writing as hints will result in immediate disqualification
In order to make a guess, however, they must first buzz and answer a fandom question from a chosen question Only the guessers will be allowed to answer.
An incorrect answer to the fandom question will freeze the guesser's buzzer for 10 seconds, preventing them from making a guess. However if they guess the character being drawn incorrectly, they are still free to buzz again.

They will also be given 3 lifelines to use once each throughout the stage:
Multiple choice: the delegates will be given 4 potential answer out of which they may choose one to answer the clue
Phone a friend: call on one other delegate from either team who gets 15 seconds to help answer the question
Are you smarter than a JTite: A random JTite will be placed in the room with the competing teams, and will be writing the answers to each of the questions that are asked. Delegates using this lifeline will be allowed to peek at the answer. However, there is no guarantee that the answer is correct. (the chosen JTite will have knowledge of the categories)

Teams that win 3 rounds will be allowed to proceed.

Round 2: Save the Spiderverse

Delegates are assigned (by chit draw) a character and a key event in their story, around which they must build a new storyline which will take place across 3 movies which they will pitch at the end.
Delegates must outline the events of 3 movies, which must include the assigned character as the protagonist, the assigned key event (at any point in the story) and also 6 villains that the protagonist must encounter, forming the Sinister Six. The first two movies must include at least one villain each, and the final movie must include all six villains.
Delegates must also produce a 10-panel storyboard for the trailer of each movie (3 storyboards total)
Delegates must give an oral pitch presenting the plot and budget of each film. Delegates are also encouraged to submit a written document detailing the plot/logistics of the film in more detail to prevent overuse of time.
Budgeting information must include hiring a notable director, casting famous actors, CGI, shot techniques, etc and also a minimum logistics cost.

Teams will be judged by a panel based on the coherence of their story, the authenticity of the protagonist, the integration of characters, the integration of the assigned key event, the reasonability of the budget, and the proposal's similarity to an existing Spiderman trilogy.

Judging Criteria

Budgeting

Budgeting is a crucial part of movie planning. Teams must choose their budget intelligently, and smartly. If they try to trick the executives with a smaller budget for a movie of a larger scale, it will send a negative impression, for example, if a team sets a $50 million dollar budget for a three-movie trilogy, underplaying its costs, it will get lower marks than a team who pitched their trilogy to be a total cost of $600 million. A trilogy should typically cost $500 million to $700 million dollars, however, in cases of story-driven films or films requiring less CGI and fewer big cast names, a lower budget, (minimum of $200 million can be considered). Vice versa, if a trilogy is overplayed to cost $1 billion, the cost is just too much for the studio to pay out of its own pocket, thus a negative impression would be sent.

Plot

A good plot consists of branching and connecting. Plot points that connect to previous movies and potential overshadowing of plot points of future movies in previous movies will be looked upon favorably. A good world-building movie, for example, the Avengers, should introduce new characters, and must not be afraid of killing off some characters (e.g a mentors for the character assigned/sidekicks). A plot should have a conflict, a resolution, ideally a twist, and a sacrifice in the final chapter. A good plot should have a clear goal for the protagonist, a good motive, and a clearer motive for the antagonist. Any mention of spin-offs is welcomed, but risky. Thus, as sub-marking points for the plot:
Story
Storyboarding of trailer
Plot twists
Relevance to source material
Originality
Foreshadowing
Characters
World-Building

Presentation

This is the final hurdle for the delegates. They must pitch their movie(s) to a panel of judges, known to them as studio executives. They will be marked on the following factors
Confidence in the project
Answers to questions
Time (must be less than 10 minutes for the pitch)
Recognition of Issues/ Loopholes and presenting resolutions
Answer to why the studio should give only them the money
Overall pitch
